

Sometimes it's difficult to see your own leadership skills. Other people can help you do this. You could ask for feedback from a support worker, or a friend or family member. Asking questions about your own leadership skills can help you find out what you are good at and what you might want to improve. For example, you could ask questions like:

1. What do you think my leadership strengths are?

2. Do people listen to my ideas? How could I make people listen more?

3. Can you think of a time that I had an idea that made a difference to my service?

4. What leadership skills do you think I should develop?
